Vanamahotsav is a yearly tree-planting development in India, which started in 1950 to celebrate the importance of growing and saving our forests and create awareness about the ill effects of deforestation. It is an annual tree planting festival in the month of July. During this festival thousands of trees are planted all over India. It was started by K. M. Munshi, the Union Minister for Agriculture and Food at that time to create awareness and the importance of the conservation of forests and planting of new trees.
